THE LEGISLATURE.

Our readers will find, under the appropriate head. the proceedings of this body from Tuesday to Thursday, inclusive.

On Wednesday the bill providing for a Railroad from Goldsborough to Beaufort was rejected in the Senate: and on Thursday the bill to amend the charter of the Cape Fear and Deep River Navigation Company, and for the relief of the same. passed its third reading in that body, and was ordered to be enrolled.

On the same day Walter L. Steele, Esq., of Richmond, was elected a Trustee of the University. There are three vacancies yet to be filled.

On Thursday the two Houses voted for Senator and for Attorney General. No election. For vote, see proceedings. The two Houses will, in all probability, vote again to-day, (Friday) for rejected in the Senate on Thursday.

ADJOURNMENT.

Both Houses of our Legislature have agreed to adjourn sine die on Wednesday next. We cannot think it probable that they will be able to adjourn by that day, but they may do so, provided the Senatorial Districts, the Commons apportionment, and of the Congressional Districts shall have been finally acted on. These important subjects have not been fully discussed, but the Committees have reported, and the bills, having been printed, have been no doubt thoroughly examined by mem-

The session has not been a very harmonious one. Parties are balanced, and for this reason is is not easy to reach final action on any important question. We can only hope that the remainder of the session will be productive of better results than many seem to anticipate; and that the good old State-whatever may be done or omittedwill continue to advance in intelligence and pros-

In the House, on the same day, the motion to refer that portion of the President's message in relation to the Tariff, was debated.

An act has been passed by the present Legislature which has long been needed, and which will be the means of saving much time to that body. It is an act to incorporate Literary Institutions and Benevolent and Charitable Societies. It provides that persons, not less then seven, desiring youths. to be incorporated for such purposes, shall declare in writing, over their names, before the Clerk of the County Court, their corporate name, the business proposed, the place where it is to be carried on, the length of time, not exceeding thirty years, and the names of persons who have subscribed to the same—the whole to be transmitted to and filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and the Governor then to issue letters patent under the great seal of the State.

SCENES IN THE COMMONS.

The Commons Hall was the arena of a struggle showed "great firmness of purpose," if not much "strength of intellect." At half-past three o'clock the "non-intervention" resolutions introduced by Mr. Leach on Saturday were taken up. Messrs, Avery, S. P. Hill and other Democrats opposed them on the ground that they were inexpedient and unnecessary; and as they were likely to consume much time in discussing them Mr. Hill moved to lay them upon the table. The Whigs having a majority refused to do so. Mr. Avery stated that as the resolutions were broad and unqualified in their nature he could not support them, as he deemed it the duty of our government to interfere in case Spain should attempt to cede the island of Cuba to any other power, and this the resolutions condemned. He therefore proposed to add an amendment making this exception to the sweeping character of the resolutions; and Whigs voted it down. Mr. Hill proposed an amendment that the resolutions should not be construed to prohibit the United States government from interfering in case any European power should attempt to establish a monarchy on our continent; and this the Whigs also voted down! Mr. Avery then proposed to amend by declaring that the resolutions should not extend to the prohibition of interference when it was necessary for self-protection; and Whigs voted down

Thus according to Whig principles, as developed in the House of Commons, Spain may cede Cuba On the same day the subject of the Congression- to Great Britain, France, or any other power-the al Districts was debated in the Senate, and that of Czar of Russia may establish a monarchy in Mexico, and any other nation may jeopard our laws The bill to establish a Bank in Plymouth was and institutions by any means they please, and our government should not interfere to prevent it. The novelty of such doctrine is only equalled by its monstrosity.

The session was prolonged until nearly eight o'clock at night, and great excitement and confusion prevailed most of the time. The resolutions were no doubt intended as a firebrand to inflame party animosity; and the Democratic members viewing them in this light, and considering them objectionable also on account of their broad and unqualified nature, and looking upon them as mere abstractions, with no binding force, no practical bearing, opposed them. When the vote was taken there was scarcely a quorum present. The Whigs claim empty one. We have heard several Whigs regret that they were introduced at all-in fact we believe a majority of them regretted it; but as they were introduced they stuck to party and voted for them. lieved the principles embodied in them generally correct. At the same time they protested against them as useless, and calculated only to consume time. For further particulars see proceedings.

The scarcity of silver coin is well accounted for n the annexed paragraph from the London News: As we stated would be the case, in the Daily News of Friday, the price of silver has again experienced an extraordinary advance. The supplies brought in by the Magdalena were sold to-day at 5s. id. per ounce for dollars, and 5s. 1 id. per ounce standard for bar silver. The total advance represented by these figures on the prices realized at the last sale s no less than $d. per ounce. This sudden rise, which is unprecedented within the recollection of the brokers, is almost entirely caused by the strength of the demand for India, to which quarter almost the whole of these supplies is going. We can also state that some considerable parcels of French 5f. pieces have lately been sold at 5s. id. per ounce, a very high price for this article, yet at this rate the operaion yields but a very trifling profit. From this fact, it will readily be seen that the operation of buying French 5f. pieces for transmission to India is a very extraordinary circumstance, and consequently worthy of especial notice. As surprise is frequently expressed at this extraordinary upward movement of the price of silver, and the causes of it are much can-

The report of the Legislative proceedings embrace every item of information at all important. The bill to charter a bank to be located in Charlotte, has their passage as a victory, but we consider it a very passed the Senate and in the House has been referred to the Judiciary Chmmittee. We hope the Charter will be granted without hesitation. Banking capital is much needed here-the rapid growth and great increase of commercial business make it necessary for the accommodation and convenience of the community. Maj. Caldwell urged its passage with his usual Several Democrats also voted for them, as they be- ability and has succeeded in getting it through the Senate-its fate is now in the House.

The Legislature will we hope grant a charter for a Road from this point to Jonesboroegh-the building of which is not only practicable but highly judicious. The friends of this enterprise do not ask the State to appropriate one dime towards its construction, although it will connect with the State Road here. On Wednesday evening another scene was enholding a Convention, Mr. Spruill of Bertie offered at the foot of the Blue Ridge. Let her make the borough road at some point near the Tennessee line, direct competition with Charleston for this valuable trade, and will thus give her citizens the benefit of

The State should in its legislation endeavor te throw open the markets of the world to her citizens, and not by artificial means attempt to force trade in his intention to speak until midnight. After speak- an unnatural direction-trade l.ke water will seek its level, and naturally flow where there is the greatest demand and consequently the most advantageous terms offered it.

If the Road is built as we have suggested-if Wilnington or Beaufort will give more for the productions of this vast and fertile region than Charleston it will go there, if not, they ought to be able to find an outlet to a market that will pay higher prices— the Road should be built for the benefit of the agriculturist and not to produce a monopoly for the benefit of any particular town. The Jonesborough Road is not only feasible, but it can and will be built without costing the State a cent-all we ask for then is a charter. The State can (and doubtless ought to) make a connexion with it any point she pleases, because she will have the territorial jurisdiction of nearly the whole line. Let Morganton build a branch to connect with it at the most eligible point, and the counties west of her build plank roads which will greatly facilitate their means of transportation. When the resources of the country become more fully developed, its agricultural productions larger and more valuable, and its territory more thickly settled, then this line of Rail Road can be extended through the Black mountain to the Tennessee line.

For the Standard. "SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE"

MR. HOLDEN: Through your columns I wish to ask an honest people if they believe in a republican form of Government ! (which I believe every North Carolinian does,) if so-why not let the people rule? They have elected a Democratic President and Vice President; they have elected a Democratic Legislature-and, as a matter of course, they wish a Democratic United States Senator, in order to carry out Democratic principles, which Democrats believe to be their country's principles; for what have Demo-crats labored in the last three popular elections in North Carolina ? Was it not for our country's good, and the promotion of such measures as would contribute ultimately to that object? Certainly that was the feeling and sentiment of the masses of the party; then after thus securing a triumphent victory, why lator ask, when a majority of his political colleagues mourn his loss and honor his memory, nominate a candidate for that appointment? We desire them to unite, if possible, upon a man of known to us all. Democratic faith-and if they should differ as to the man, of course give their adhesion to the one that seems the family of our deceased brother and tender them to satisfy a majority of the people. As to Free Suffrage, can it be possible that the Legislature of North Carolina has killed it ? I answer no! emphtically no! They have checked it, but kill it they cannot. The people have willed it and are ready to ratify it, and they expect their legislators to give them a chance to ratify it, but in this it seems the people cannot at present be heard, (" rest ye assured " they will be.) Those who have thus set aside the expressed interest and rights of the people, for party purposes, will be remembered hereafter, for who, I ask, can refuse, after the measure has passed all the initiatory stages, to let the people be heard directly upon the subject? I can hardly believe there is such a legislator-but it seems there s enough such to reject the measure; but who are Whigs-save one (I mean the Senate) and that one, (say several Whig papers,) has been the Democratic anti-Free Suffrage legislator; thereby solding the party responsible for its failure, but on ooking through our " blind specks" we find the names of some gentlemen voting against it who advocated it on the stump before the people, and they will near of their consistency before they are elected to Congress, or again elected to carry out the people's

Perhaps it displays itself less noisily than with some others, but a careful examination of the proceedings of secent Legisatures, and some knowledge of the views of the peoole of the interior, obtained through the medium of he press, and by actual centact with them in repeated visits to the Western section, have convinced us that this spirit amounts to a determination, and will not rest satisfied until a very general system shall have are, that matters will be hurried on in advance of the available resources of the State; and that local and sectional interests may force through conflicting and perhaps mutually injurious schemes, thus destroying all idea of a system. It will be the policy of all thoughtful friends of Internal Improvement, and of the State, to make haste slowly and cautiously. Already we are threatened with two main lines through the State, competing with each other for the same through travel, we mean, of course, that by the Raleigh and Gaston and Central Road, connecting with the Charlotte and South Carolina Road, which will in some measure be a competitor with our line for the travel between the North and the South, and still again a connection between the Central Road at Greensborough and the Richmond and Danville Road is among the things to be dreaded in the future, being another competitor for the same travel and forming precisely the route contemplated by the friends of he Charlotte and Danville scheme. And further, it would seem that the idea of a metropolitan Route, from Raleigh to the South Carolina Roads, via. Faystreville, Cheraw, etc., has not been yet abandoned, but has revived by the contemplated construction of the North Eastern Road from Charleston to a point on the line of the Manchester Road, and the Cheraw and Darlington Road from that point to Cheraw, with the avowed desire and intention on the part of the people of Charleston to extend it to the North Carolina Coal Mines in Chatham county, N. C. From the Mines to Raleigh is a very short distance, and that gap being filled, as filled it would be, the much talked of metropolitan route, another competitor for the same through travel would be completed. It can neither be the interest of the State nor in accordance with any wise system or just policy to encourage and foster the construction of so many lines, which must necessarily prove mutually injurious instead of mutually advantageous to each other and to the State. What is done is done, and we will not say anything against it, but certainly it would seem that two routes through the State, the lower by way of Wilmington and the upper by way of Charlotte and Raleigh, are enough in that way, without setting up two others-the Charlotte and Danville and the Metropolitan. New works should either be feeders to those already constructed or should open up new channels of trade for themselves. We attach no blame to the counties along the line of, say, the Metropolitan route, for they, of course, want to be placed in communication with the rest of mankind by Railthe 12th November.
